A true story that makes children and adults aware of the places we inhabit and the actions we can take to beautify them

This is not a manual to learn how to recycle, compost or even how to choose the best plant of the season. This story, inspired in a real story, is about a proactive woman who realized she could renew her neighborhood and turn it into "the most beautiful place on earth". It is also a reminder that if we act collaboratively as a community, we can transform our environment and ourselves.

Key Points

- A moving real story about how to change the world
- It teaches how to do it
- Ideal to learn about garbage, recycling and composting
