

The Boy of El Plomo Hill

César Sandoval & Gabriela Germain

Muñeca de Trapo, 2021

ISBN: 978-956-9829-29-1

20 x 26 cm

40 pp

Hard cover

Spanish

A true story that allows us to understand the Andean cosmogony through the figure of a child

Five centuries ago, on the confines of the great Inca Empire, a boy is taken to the valley of the Mapocho River. On his shoulders rest the hopes of an entire village. This will be the beginning of a ceremonial journey to the encounter of Apu Wamani, the sacred mountain. And will become a spiritual journey that will finally lead him to his destiny.

Key Points

- New point of view about the of boy of the El Plomo Hill story
- It invites us to imagine the journey he made from El Cuzco to Chile

César Sandoval Ortiz. (Perú) Psychologist by profession, reader and writer by vocation. In 2013, he published the story "Ecos de los Andes" for Lectus magazine, where he participated with the column "Crónica Animal" between 2013 and 2015. In 2015 he publishes the book of stories "From my corners", which includes the story "Cauri Pacssa".

Gabriela Germain Fonck. (Chile) Graphic designer, teacher, photographer and illustrator. Author of When wind blows strong, Little Green, Archibaldo and Reinaldo.

